Beirut in truce with terrorists

Jerusalem Post Arab Affaire Reporter Lebanese Premier Sa'eb Salam nd Fatah chief Yasser Arafat yes terday agreed to end the crisis brought on by the weekend clashes between the terrorists and the Lebanese army, the Beirut press re-ported yesterday.

Arafat was reported to have been ummoned from Damascus after the Beirut government had issued ultimatum demanding an mediate terrorist pull-out from poskions in southern Lebanon where the weekend fighting took place.

The reported agreement — one of many to be reached between the two sides since their major showdown in 1969 — appeared a pre-lude to an unessy truce between the Lebenese authorities and the terrorists, some sections of which openly dety Arafat's leadership.

The third Jewish suspect, Iraqiborn Yehezkel Cohen, was supposed ly due to leave for Syria next month. He is said to claim he was recruited by Adiv. The fourth Jewish suspect, German-born David Kupfer, 26, who came to Israel in 1948, had applied for a passport. However, he was prevented from travelling abroad by a court injunction issued at the request of his divorced wife. Judging from the evidence gathered so far, there may be ground for arrest of another two or three Jewish suspects, it is reliably learned.

CHRISTMAS According to one source, the ring

had chosen Christmas Eve for a series of simultaneous attacks at pilgrimage sites in various parts of the country. They had been ap-parently heping to repeat the effect created by the bombing of five homes in Haifa on one day several years ago, and to capitalize on the fact that the eyes of the whole Christian world would be turned toward the Holy Land.

Druse leaders expressed shock when they learned that two mem-bers of their community were among the suspects arrested. They stresse that the number of Druse connected with sabotage rings has been negligible, and that they considered acts against Israel's security to be acts against their own community itself. It is not yet clear how or by whom the Golan Druse suspect was recruited, but it is considered possible that the group's Syrian operators recommended him. Syrian intelligence has for some time been trying to organize Golan Druse for sabotage against Israel. Meanwhile, at Haifa University the Student Union has decided to temporarily suspend the two Haifa students arrested in the case -Aviv and 35-year-old Galilee Arab student Simon Haddad. Gem-polishing machine won't be sold abroad

Jerusalem Post Economic Reporter Reports that two wonder-machines for polishing diamonds will be exported to Israel's competitors abroad were vigorously denied In Tel Aviv last night.

The machines were developed by Professor Yehoshua Yarnitzky, of the Technion, for the Diamond Institute, and are being patented. They are already in production by Kniso Ltd., in Haifa, a subsidiary of Kulicke and Soffa Industries, of Pennsylvania.

Kuiso requested permission to export the equipment "This was refused," an official spokesman told The Jerusalem Post. "We want to keep it for our own industry. The whole matter will be discussed again at a Board meeting of the Institute on December 27."

One machine polishes the rim of the diamond and rounds the stone. The other, more complex, grinds and polishes four of the facets electronically, thus achieving more accurate results and at the same time saving labour. Reports that an Israeli manufacturer copied the secret design of one of the machines to pass the information overseas are denied by the spokes-man, who said, 'There is no proof, and we don't believe it." According to a press agency, requests for the machines have come in from Belgium, the United States and other gem centres — but all applications have been turned down so far.

'sadistic' murder

TEL AVIV. - A young man and his girlfriend were vesterday convicted by the Tel Aviv District Court of stranging a 25-yearold immigrant on a lonely sand dune near Holon last year. in a crime motivated by "sadism and jealousy."

The man, Ezra Antar, 20, received a life sentence. The gark whom the court described as "an unscrupulous sadist," will be sentenced at a later date. The court withheld publication of her name because she was a minor at the time the crime was committed. She is now 18.

The victim, Marco Sa'ada, came to this country in 1968 from Lebanon. He fell in love with the girl, a neighbour of his in Holon, giving her money and presents. The jeaious Antar, a drug addict since the age of 13, insisted that the girl stop seeing Sa'ada. On one occasion he beat Sa'ada up.

The prosecution said it was Antar who probably conceived the murder. But it was the girl, more intelligent than he. with planned the actual crime, step by step. One might in May 1971.

she lured her suitor to a rendezvous on the sand dunes in Holon,

The girl easily managed to get her boyfriend drunk. After he passed out, Antar, who had been hiding nearby, told the girl to remove the victim's shirt and then strangled him with it.

The murderers then buried the body in a grave they had prepared beforehand. On top of the grave, to repel passersby from the spot, they laid a dog they had slain. Several days after the murder, Autar returned to the site and attempted to burn the body, but for some reason was unable to complete the job.

8 Iraqi Jews said back in prison

Most or all of the eight Iraqi Jows who were recently released from Baghdad prisons have been re-arrested, "Itim" learned from dipiomatic sources in Jerusalem yesterday. The Public Council for Jews In Arab Lands is due to meet this evening in Jerusalem to consider what action to take on the matter. The Council has already called on its chapters in other countries, well as other public organizations, to mobilize public opinion.

The eight Baghdad Jews were first arrested last October. They were released the following month after considerable pressure was exerted on the Iraqi Government through diplomatic channels and other media. Their release eased the fears of the Iraqi Jewish community, but now they anticipate a ew wave of terror and oppression, the sources said.

According to recent reports, the switch in "policy" indicates that more extremist elements in the Iraqi regime have regained — with regard to the Jews at least — the

How do we do it? Simple, we put the car on a piece of equipment called a Dynamometer, start the engine, and within seconds the car is undergoing the conditions it would experience travelling at 150 mph. It's nice to know that Ford cars like the new Capri '73 are built to travel well within their capabilities.

This also helps explain why the Capri gives you the kind of first class performance, handling and road-holding you come to expect only from a carrosserie built sports car.

The new '73 Ford Capri has been built to be better. It's got a new look, and a new feeling when you drive. One thing that remains the same is the power, only now, there's more of it with new 1600 ohc engines

The new long bonnet power bulge means exactly what it says — the Capri is a performance car, and it can out perform and out accelerate most of Europe's best known sportscars. They take the strain out of night driving and make it a lot safer. Safety's also the reason behind the new double banked rear light units. In a '73 Capri you can see and be seen.

Inside, the changes are all for your comfort. We've redesigned the instrument panel and now it's perhaps the best laid out and easiest to read of any car in Europe. And there's no chance of a dial being obscured by the new twin-spoke steering wheel.

We've improved the seats by moulding them to grip your body. So when you take a tight corner, you don't have to hold on to your seat, it holds on to you. New seats, and a slightly softened suspension, make travelling in a new '73 Capri a comfortable, as well as, thrilling, experience.

Visit your local Ford Dealer, test drive the new Ford Capri '73. And while you're cruising along remember that the car could travel twice as fast and still be just as reliable, just as safe and handle just as well.

Helsinki security parley to break for a month

HELSINKI (UPI). - The 34 European nations, the U.S. and Canada, preparing a European security conference, yesterday agreed to recess the plenary talks for a month starting on Friday, despite the Soviet's insistence a long break 'would not be understood by world public opinion." conference sources said.

But a compromise was finally reached in a "good spirit," they said. The agreement came after an hour-long rare afternoon ses where both East and West yielded on their original demands. Western powers had supported a West German proposal to adjourn the talks on Friday and reconvene the meeting on January 22. Soviet Ambassador Viktor Maltsev. according to the sources, this mornexpressed the view" that a five week

Market's executive commission and the ministers' council secretariat started a nine-day walk-out, strike leaders said their action was not so much aimed at getting more money, but at defending the principle of yearly adaptations of their salaries.

"We are fed up having to fight all the time to maintain our purchasing power and to protect it against erosion by increasing cost of living," said German official Theodor Holtz, chairman of the strike committee

"We are not striking in the first best place for more money, but for the 9.45

Eigty-seven per cent of the Market employees — commonly called Durocrats — voted in favour of the strike. The council of ministers last Saturday, after 27 hours of dis-cussions, failed to agree on a formula on adaptation of wages which was considered acceptable by the strike committee.

The council last March agreed in principle to yearly increases taking into account the rise in cost of living and the increased purchasing power of comparable civil servants in national administrations. This year's adaptation also was to include a one-time increase to catch up on previous adaptetion

The Eurocrais calculative commission made proposals which came very close to that claim. But the very offer the ministers made was per cent, rejected as insuffiprotection of our incomes," he said cient by the strike committee.

In London, a Foreign Office spokesman described as pure specu-lation news reports that the Soviet rockets now being used by the Irish Republican Army were being directly supplied by Moscow or by dissidents in Cyprus.

"We have no idea where the rockets are coming from," he said. Meanwhile in Belfast leaders of the Protestant Ulster Unionist Party held a crisis meeting yesterday to decide whether to expel extremists from the organization.

But party officials doubted that the move, which they called political suicide, would be approved.

The crisis in the Unionist Party was provoked by demands that the 40,000 members of the militant Vanguard movement in the party be expelled as a reply to the rise in Ulster violence.

Judgment Justice Kister, who delivered the minority opinion of the Supreme Court, noted that the District Court, by its order, had in fact robbed the appellant's right of guardianship over his child of all meaning by giving the welfere officer the right to have the child adopted without consulting with him or receiving his consent. The question which arises here, he continued, is whether the Capacity and Guardianship Law, 1962, does in fact vest a court with such broad powers.

In considering this question, Justice Kister found no provision in the above law which does in fact vest a court with such powers. While, he held, it is true that the appellant cannot care for his children himself while he is in prison, there is no provision of law which completely denies a father sentenced to imprisonment, and even to life imprisonment, his rights as a parent and natural guardian of his children, even if, from a practical point of view, his care of them and his control over their education and upbringing can be exercised only through his representative or by cooperation with an additional guardian appointed for this purpose. In this context, continued Justice Kister, it should be noted that the little girl does in fact have relatives — her mother's

As to the law, he continued, under section 11(1) of the Adoption Law, and over the appellant's child for answering it in the affirmative. As to the law, he continued, under section 11(1) of the Adoption Law, and over the appellant's child for answering it in the affirmative. As to the law, he continued, under account may make an adoption or the repeated their application.

As to the Adoption Law, and the importance in Jewish tradition and towards the child," and the only reasonable interpretation of this is that a parent also fails to fulfil his duty towards his child when he is prevented from doing so by the fact that he has been imprisoned for life because of a crime which he has committed. On the question of the child's adoption by strangers, Justice Landau noted that none of the child's grandparents was in a position to keep her and bring her up. Furthermore, he continued, the appellant had not objected in principle to having the chald adopted press an opinion on the question of adoption. by strangers but had argued that it was better for her not to be separated from her brother. How-Justice Landau ever, in this respect he agreed Justice Landau, with whom Justice with the welfare office, held Jus-

Justice Landau then went on to consider the question of whether the Capacity and Guardianship Law allows of the appointment of an additional guardian over a child in order that the guardian might hand the child over for adoption. He agreed with the District Court, he said, that under section 28 of the Law it was entitled to appoint an additional guardian as the appellant was incapable of carrying out his duties towards his child, and under sections 45 and 46 it may give this additional guardian certain specific duties, such as deciding where the child should be kept, how it should be educated and whether it should be adopted.

The appeal should, therefore, be dismissed, concluded Justice Landau, with the reservation that when the adoption proceedings are set in motion the court should fulfil all the requirements of the Adoption Law and rules of procedure, giving the appellant an opportunity to state his case and inviting the child's maternal grandparents to be present at the proceedings. Appeal dismissed without costs.

NOW THE TOURIST SEASON IS ON MAKE THE MOST OF TWA'S 747 AMBASSADOR SERVICE TO AMERICA.

Even when you're sitting in just one of TWA's specially designed lumbar support seats, you get a more comfortable flight than on any one else's 747.

But at this time of year, we can often do you even better.

And, as more than one experienced traveller has discovered, being able to spread yourself on a TWA Ambassador Service 747 can make a big difference to a trip to America.

We can't, of course, always promise a row of seats all to yourself.

But we certainly can always promise the things which make every Ambassador Service flight better.

On Ambassador Service, you always get a choice of three main courses.

Two films.*

Smoking or strictly nonsmoking areas.

You also get the important choice of quick attention when you want it, and being left in peace when you don't.

And when you get to New York, you get the benefit of TWA's unique terminal.

TWA is the only airline to have a terminal to itself at Kennedy Airport.

And as it only handles about twenty international flights a day, our terminal can usually give you one of the quickest and most pleasant entries you've ever had to the United States.

As well as convenient TWA connections to 35 US cities.

SPY RING: TRAGIC TALE

DANIEL Cohn-Bendit "Red Danny," who almost brought revolution back to France, enjoyed a brief summer of success before he was swallowed up by the counter-culture, as another of its pop-art heroes, Revolutionaries no longer starve in garrets, and that may be one of the reasons why they tend to return to society faster than their illustrious predecessors.

Now, as in the past, young Jews have been in the forefront of these movements. In the solid light of Israel reality, Danny's fables of world revolution, of total destruction in order to rebuild from the beginning, did not sound very beguiling: things are too raw and new here, they have been built up with too much labour too cently, within the memory of the parents of our apprentice revolutionaries. Yet now we apparently have Israelis who picked up his ideas as others imitate the fashion in music or in nudity.

There is one big difference, and our students who want to be in the left-wing swim failed to see it. Even the Baader-Meinhoff group in Germany did not propose to dismember Ger-many; Cohn-Bendit, Germanmany; Cohn-Bendit, German-born, did not propose to the French students that they tear up France and give it to the Algerians, or the Germans or the Russians. They must tear down the fabric of today that makes for poverty, wars and suffering, he demanded, and build a better Germany, or France or America for tomorrow.

Rakah has been embarrassed by the appearance of this group of 34 Arabs and Druse and four Jews. They have proclaimed unasked that they never proposed means. But it is a small step between proposing something that the great majority of a country will not accept willingly. and discovering a group of activists who will try to carry it out. The yishuo had its dissident activists in the years before the state. It is almost comical that the same fate should now befall the Communists, and that they should have to plead innocence for fear of losing their Jewish membership.

If what we learn at this stage is true, some of the group intended a spectacular kidnap in order to hold the state to ransom for some political de-mand, which might as easily be withdrawal from Eilat as from Sharm-e-Sheikh. It is precisely this possibility which has made Israel so determined not to accede to kidnap demands even for the release of prisoners. We have reason to be grateful that, since the recent disasters, police and intelligence services seem once more to be fully on

The whole tale is tragic, and doubly and trebly so for the Jews involved. They are all young enough never to have known anything but a victorious Israel, rolling back Arab armies. In their own way, they may have hoped to create a Middle East in which Jews and Arabs would live together freely, without nationstates to preserve their interests or identifies. The Arabs in the group may well have been less naive, and they will unfortunately make an important contribution to the Black September, and generally nationalist cause, of sowing more hatred. They will cause suspicion and hatred be-tween Jews and Arabs, and hope to prove that they cannot learn to co-exist, as they have been beginning to do in the area beany action — for instance a beginning to do in the area be-return of the 1967 borders — tween Israel and Jordan during by force, but only by political the past five years.

Al Hamishmar (Mapam) is surprised at the Finance Minister's announcement cancelling the right of workers to strike pay, even for workers striking with Histadrut sanction.

The London Guardian said in an editorial yesterday: "Is Israel_really annexing the occupied Arab territories? The establishment of Jew ish settlements and communities in these areas point to annexations and Israel's scornful reaction to Friday's resolution at the end of the U.N. General Assembly's debate reinforces this impression. Israel argues that it still wants a peace agreement but its action makes that agree ment harder to reach. Israeli settle-ments on the West Bank are reinforced because it is thought that King Hussein cannot make peace. As a result King Husseln finds it even harder to make peace because of the greater Israell presence. Under the heading "Rich to get Richer Under Tax Relief," you quote Dr. Katz as saying that "A man with four children earning IL600 a month will net IL6 more under proposed income tax reductions. Dr. Ratz or your correspondent has given a distorted report, since no mention is made of the fact that the proposed income tax reductions relate to progressive figures which have been presented through your newspaper in terms of absolute figures, which makes no sense and is misleading.

The fact is that the people classified in this article as "rich," namely, the middle-class earners, have been paying exorbitant income tax rates, which have taken away all incentive to work and have made it impossible for these families to make ends meet during a period of galloping inflation. Whilst in other Western countries, people of this income bracket pay in the region of 25 per cent total taxation, here in Israel, they are paying 75 per cent, which is a severe burden.

It is only because of the acute situation — and the rash of strikes will bear this out — that the Ministry of Finance intends making a slight concession this coming year.

How can one compare this situation to that of a similar family earning only IL600 a month, who most probably do not pay any income tax at all. Furthermore, the which go for social services.

THE WILD WEST, MOTHER GOOSE AND OLD SIGI

With Prejudice by Alex Berlyne

DESPITE the Celtic twilight anything else, one would expect William Butler Yeats could see the way things were going when he wrote "the ceremony of innocence is drowned." A few nights ago I was trying to relax while watching "The Virginian" on TV when I suddenly realized that the gunman, according to the script, was motivated by a "death-wish." The Wild West according to Freud! Old Sigi certainly has a lot to answer for. I've just been reading a review of Maureen Duffy's 'The Erotic World of Faery" where all our favourite fairy stories get the Freudian treatment to the extent that I doubt that I'll ever be able to open "Mother Goose" again without blushing. Among other revelations, Miss Duffy tells us that Aladdin rubbing the lamp is a masturbatory fantasy, and all that business of Cinderella fitting on the slipper symbolizes her more intimate measurements. The most surprising things turn out to be metaphors for the sex act or for odd bits of human anatomy. Psychoanalysis has changed our society tremendously, though perhaps more in the theatre and literature than in medicine and science. Its most pervading influence in everyday life has been in child-rearing and I think it fair to say that, particularly since the 1930s, it has produced an unimaginable amount of parental guilt as well as contributing more than any other factor to the generation gap. Freudian legend

Why do parents, particularly American parents, wall, "How did we fail?" when their children behave as children have always behaved since the year dot? cause Freudian legend has it that every word or action of the parents is making a lasting impression on their child's mind, often the opposite of what was intended, and may result in immeasurable harm which will not be apparent for years to come. This is hardly calculated to in-stil confidence. Not only that, the fashions in child-rearing come and go with startling rapidity. The great man's daughter, Anna, summed it up in a 1966 book "Normality and Pathology in Children." First, she tells us, parents were warned about the traumatic effects of bodily intimacy on their children. This was later reversed and full sexual enlightenment at an early age was advocated. Theories about aggression, anxiety and guilt appeared and were rapidly replaced, some being "contra-dictory and mutually exclusive... Above all, to rid the child of proved an impossible task," Anna Freud writes. "Psychoanalytic education did not succeed in becoming the preventive measure it had set out to be. The children who grew up under its influence... were not freer from anxiety or conflicts and therefore not less exposed to neurotic or other mental III-

In fact, Anna, no one has yet convincingly demonstrated that analysis benefits neurotic adults more than doing nothing at all or more than would result from any layman showing a lengthy and sympathetic interest in their condition. Apart from natural improvement in many patients simply because of the incredible length of time required for treatment. However, the theory is insulated against criticism by a sort of built-in device, a thesis about the critic's necessary misguidedness which can be extremely infuriating.

Along similar lines is the favourite psychoanalytical ploy of taking the opposite of what the theory predicts as being just as much a confirmation. For instance, Anthony Quinton has described in a recent essay how, according to Freud, a man's strict upbringing should have resuited in him being aggressive towards his father. If this does not turn out to be the case then, it is explained, the unconscious is simply disguising this aggressiveness. All this is wearying.

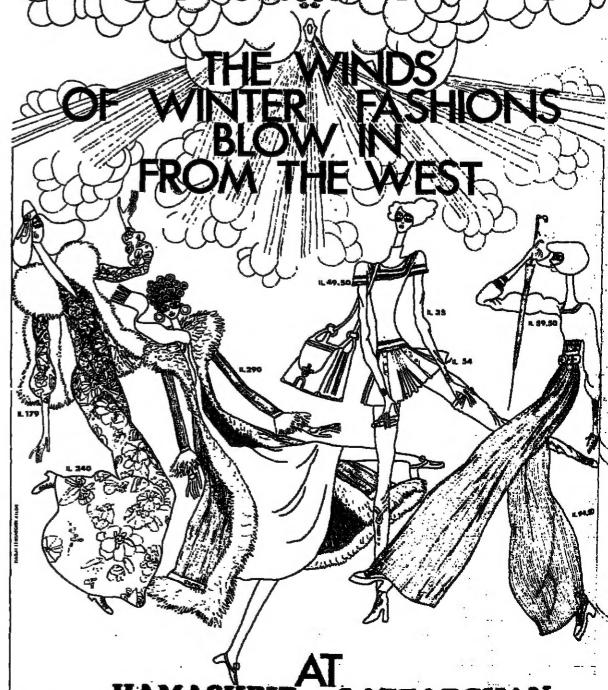

Sexual traumas

At first Freud believed that his patients' stories of traumatic sexual experiences in early life were factual and constructed an elaborate theory to sustain it. Later he was forced to reconsider this, because of the sheer improbability of so many nasty events having taken place. Hav-ing discovered that a number of such accounts were entirely fictitious, he substituted the idea. that sexual fantasy rather than experience was responsible for the neurosis. This element of gullibility was apparent even when he was a student of Charcot's at La Salpetriere and was tremendously impressed with the famous Friday morning demon-strations, although it later transpired that some of the chronic patients who were a regular feature of these clinics were in fact coached and paid by Charcot's assistants

Freud told his biographer, Ernest Jones, that as a young man he "felt a strong attraction to-wards speculation and ruthlessly checked it." Nevertheless, he and his successors built up an enormous system of speculative psychological theory. To be con-sidered a scientific discipline its theories should be capable of being confirmed by observation. The events discussed in analysis are usually remote in time and essentially private by nature, ren-dering some form of independent verification well-nigh impossible. In fact, this whole branch of psychoneurology belongs inside the covers of Professor Lipkin's "Journal of Irreproducible Results."

Orthodox psychiatry has dem-onstrated its usefulness in the treatment of mental illness which can be shown to respond to drugs or to electroconvulsive therapy, whereas analysis demands the sort of faith that revealed religion requires of its adherents and its tenets are not susceptible to objective testing. It is possible that if modern psychopharmacology continues to progress at the present rate the whole question of the validity of psychoanalysis may become obsolete.

In the meantime we will continue to be "entertained" by such psychoanalytically orientated novels as "Portnoy's Com-plaint," films like the "Clockwork Orange" and books about perverted Fairy Godmothers.
